We Need Supportive Spaces That Celebrate Us: Black Girls Speak Out About Public Schools

Why We Focus On Black Girls

Inequities caused by racism, sexism, homophobia, transphobia, and economic injustice pervade every aspect of Black girls' education, depriving them of the educational spaces they deserve and are entitled to under law. Public schools should be supportive, affirming, well-resourced places where Black girls are championed in their academic and personal growth. Black girls are true experts on real-time conditions in our schools; we must center their needs to address interlocking educational barriers. We have the power to implement the transformative solutions Black girls in our community have outlined for us.

Supportive Spaces Recommendations

1. Schools need to hire, retain, and support more Black teachers, administrators, and staff
2. Black girls need access to supportive and affirming adults at school
3. Schools must implement culturally responsive and affirming curriculum
4. Dress and grooming codes, if used, must be fair and inclusive and must affirm students’ cultural and gender expression
5. Schools must provide culturally affirming mental health supports and increase the number of school-based mental health providers who have shared lived experiences and identities with Black girls
6. Police should be removed from schools
7. Schools need sufficient resources to fully educate Black girls and support their academic success
8. Schools must adequately respond to the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic
